

PRIZE BRIGLAR WAS CAUGHT IN THE TOILS.

Surrendered When a Six-Shooter Was Placed Under His Nose.

In His Rooms Were Found Bats, Braces, Skeleton Keys and Knock-Out Drops.

Also a Gold Dollar Beautifully Inscribed with the Full Text of the Lord's Prayer.

NAME SAID TO BE JOSEPH CORRY.

Police Are Convinced That They Have the Man Who for Months Has Been Robbing Apartments on the Lower West Side of Town.

Joseph Corry, with many aliases, a burglar and sneak thief, who has kept the police of the Macdonald Street Station on the jump for the past three months, was captured yesterday while trying to break into an apartment on the third floor of No. 44 Thompson street.

For over three months persons living on the far lower West Side have complained to Captain Farrell, of the Macdonald Street Station, that their apartments were being robbed while they were absent at work. Detectives Frazee and Jackson were detailed on the case. For a long time they made but little headway. Then an attempt was made to break open the safe of Rudolf Oelsner, at No. 457 Broadway. This set the detectives to working harder than ever, and about three weeks ago they saw an old-time crook named Walter Kirkpatrick alias "Bunt" walking through

He had just been released, after serving four years in Sing Sing for grand larceny. With him was another well-known thief

"Bunt." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

When Corry found he was going to be locked up he assumed an air of bravado. This is the best arrest you people have made in a long time," he said. "I don't care with those guys downstairs. I simply use them as lookouts. Once in a while I take them to bed money and a meal, but I tell you, they ain't in my class." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

When Corry found he was going to be locked up he assumed an air of bravado. This is the best arrest you people have made in a long time," he said. "I don't care with those guys downstairs. I simply use them as lookouts. Once in a while I take them to bed money and a meal, but I tell you, they ain't in my class." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

When Corry found he was going to be locked up he assumed an air of bravado. This is the best arrest you people have made in a long time," he said. "I don't care with those guys downstairs. I simply use them as lookouts. Once in a while I take them to bed money and a meal, but I tell you, they ain't in my class." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

When Corry found he was going to be locked up he assumed an air of bravado. This is the best arrest you people have made in a long time," he said. "I don't care with those guys downstairs. I simply use them as lookouts. Once in a while I take them to bed money and a meal, but I tell you, they ain't in my class." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

"guys" in the meanwhile had succeeded in making their escape. Corry was handcuffed and taken to the Macdonald Street Station, and from there to Jefferson Market Court, where he was remanded until to-day. His picture was taken for the police, and he will be paraded before headquarters men for identification.

After he was disposed of, Captain Farrell, accompanied by Detectives Frazee and Jackson, went to his rooms at No. 85 Carmine street and discovered a complete set of burglars' tools. There were bits, braces and borer, besides a number of skeleton keys. A gold chain, a braided chain with a lock, attached to which was a gold dollar inscribed with the Lord's Prayer; five solid silver spoons, and twenty-six pawn tickets were also discovered. These latter represented jewelry of all kinds, silverware and clothes.

American Brigantine Carib Had to Heave To in Spanish Waters Off Cape Francis, Cuba.

Another American vessel has been held up off the Cuban coast by a Spanish gunboat. This time it was the brigantine Carib, and she was compelled to leave to Cape Francis, on October 19, until the Spaniards had satisfied themselves that she was not a filibuster.

The Carib, Captain Francis J. Montgomery, which registers 164 tons, was bound from Truxillo for this port. She arrived here yesterday and her meeting with the Spanish vessel was regarded as a mere incident of the voyage. It was admitted that the brigantine was within the three-mile limit of the Cuban coast, and therefore Captain Montgomery was not inclined to view the gunboat's action as unusual.

She was steering northwest, over a moonlit sea, and at 10 o'clock she sighted Cape Francis, Cuba.

For over three months persons living on the far lower West Side have complained to Captain Farrell, of the Macdonald Street Station, that their apartments were being robbed while they were absent at work. Detectives Frazee and Jackson were detailed on the case. For a long time they made but little headway. Then an attempt was made to break open the safe of Rudolf Oelsner, at No. 457 Broadway. This set the detectives to working harder than ever, and about three weeks ago they saw an old-time crook named Walter Kirkpatrick alias "Bunt" walking through

He had just been released, after serving four years in Sing Sing for grand larceny. With him was another well-known thief

"Bunt." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

When Corry found he was going to be locked up he assumed an air of bravado. This is the best arrest you people have made in a long time," he said. "I don't care with those guys downstairs. I simply use them as lookouts. Once in a while I take them to bed money and a meal, but I tell you, they ain't in my class." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

When Corry found he was going to be locked up he assumed an air of bravado. This is the best arrest you people have made in a long time," he said. "I don't care with those guys downstairs. I simply use them as lookouts. Once in a while I take them to bed money and a meal, but I tell you, they ain't in my class." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

When Corry found he was going to be locked up he assumed an air of bravado. This is the best arrest you people have made in a long time," he said. "I don't care with those guys downstairs. I simply use them as lookouts. Once in a while I take them to bed money and a meal, but I tell you, they ain't in my class." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

When Corry found he was going to be locked up he assumed an air of bravado. This is the best arrest you people have made in a long time," he said. "I don't care with those guys downstairs. I simply use them as lookouts. Once in a while I take them to bed money and a meal, but I tell you, they ain't in my class." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

On Monday night they saw Kirkpatrick go into No. 85 Carmine street. They watched the place all night. Yesterday morning about 10:30 o'clock they saw Kirkpatrick, "Bunt," Corry and another man come out. The four walked through Broome street and between Sullivan and Thompson tried the doors of two houses. Finding them locked they turned into Thompson street and two of them went into No. 44. In a few moments they returned and spoke to Corry.

The latter at once went upstairs, and the detectives, who had been watching the man, followed. They found Corry on the third floor preparing to break open a door. "Throw up your hands," shouted Frazee, pointing a gun at Corry.

The man for a moment showed a disposition to fight, and then surrendered. In an inside pocket of his coat was a jimmy about fifteen inches long, capable of breaking open any ordinary door, while in the pockets were found a bottle of knock-out drops, a watch with the ring wrenched off, a number of keys, a memorandum book and a small ring. There was also a card of H. Weinstein, No. 132 Eighth avenue, who says and sells pawn tickets.

When Corry found he was going to be locked up he assumed an air of bravado. This is the best arrest you people have made in a long time," he said. "I don't care with those guys downstairs. I simply use them as lookouts. Once in a while I take them to bed money and a meal, but I tell you, they ain't in my class." The latter, when he saw the detectives, ran and threw away a key, which was afterward found. Kirkpatrick was arrested and taken to Headquarters, where he was recognized as a thief who had served twenty-four years in prison. Nothing could be proved against him and he was discharged, but Detectives Frazee and Jackson shadowed him night and day.

MARKET BUOYANT ON BROKERS' HOPES.

No Plunging, but Countless Small Sales for the Investment.

Bay State Gas Led the Advance on the Standard Oil Crowd Getting Control.

Money Goes to a 96 Per Cent Per Annum Rate, but It Had Little Effect on Stocks.

MUCH "HEDGING" CAUSES A RISE.

It is Estimated That Fully One-half of the Purchases of the Day Were of the Investment Variety, Based on Political Hopes.

Wall Street, Monday, Nov. 9. The market was very buoyant to-day, and stocks advanced 1 to 5 1/2 per cent. Bay State Gas leading the upward movement, on account of the change of control to the Standard Oil parties. The higher prices represented Wall Street's conviction of a

Following are the sales of bonds, expressed in $1,000s, and range of prices:

246 Atchafalaya adj. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
100 Atchafalaya adj. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
5 Am. Ariz. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
1 Broadway & 7th Ave. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
2 Brooklyn W. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
3 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
4 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
5 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
6 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
7 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
8 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
9 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
10 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
11 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
12 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
13 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
14 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
15 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
16 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
17 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
18 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
19 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
20 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
21 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
22 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
23 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
24 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
25 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
26 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
27 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
28 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
29 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
30 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
31 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
32 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
33 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
34 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
35 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
36 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
37 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
38 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
39 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
40 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
41 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
42 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
43 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
44 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
45 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
46 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
47 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
48 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
49 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
50 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
51 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
52 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
53 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
54 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
55 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
56 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
57 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
58 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
59 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
60 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
61 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
62 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
63 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
64 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
65 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
66 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
67 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
68 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
69 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
70 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
71 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
72 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
73 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
74 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
75 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
76 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
77 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
78 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
79 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
80 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
81 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
82 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
83 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
84 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
85 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
86 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
87 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
88 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
89 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
90 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
91 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
92 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
93 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
94 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100 1/2
95 Ches. & Del. 48	100 1/2	100